

Windows login reminder bug

Several employees are seeing a bug where a "Windows logon reminder" notification will say that "Your password has expired."

This notification will come up daily even after changing your password.

Until this bug is fixed by Windows, the simplest solution is to simply to turn off the notification for this. To do that, click on the "..." in the upper right hand corner of the notification and select the option to "Turn off all notifications for Windows logon reminder"
